AT THE THEATRE

Another Fine Performance
The Great McEwen, who is filling a three-nights' engagement at the Duncan opera house, gave another splendid entertainment last night, which eclipsed that given on Monday night. Tonight he will give his third and last show.
The feature of McEwen's entertainment last night was his trifling with all sorts of handcuffs and shackles. In order that there should be no claim of "fake" he called upon a committee of citizens in the audience to appear on the stage and watch his operations. Included in this committee was Officer Con Dennis, who brought his own handcuffs and manacles. In every instance the handcuffs were unlocked and removed within the space of a few seconds, making it impossible for him to have used keys. It was indeed mystifying work, and those who saw McEwen operate last night are still wondering how it was done.
The hypnotic part of his show last night was even more remarkable than on the night previous. He put his subjects, which for the most part were volunteers from the audience and well known persons about town, through numerous stunts, which were ludicrous to the extreme and kept the audience roaring.
Tonight a crowded house should be on hand to witness McEwen, as he is by far the greatest magician and hypnotist ever seen in Las Vegas.

CORINNE

THE STAR IN "MLLE. MISCHIEF" AS SHE APPEARS WHEN WEARING BOY'S CLOTHES.

Of the many operettas which have been imported from Vienna, none have contained more tuneful melodies or a more coherent plot than "Mlle. Mischief," which the Shuberts will present, with Corinne as star, and the original New York production, at the Duncan opera house next Tuesday night, October 26th.

The story is of the model, Rosette, the fiancée of Claire, an artist, who is wagered a fortune that it will be impossible for her to spend twenty-four hours in the garb of the village. How to accomplish this is the problem, but she luckily chances upon the costume of one of her lover's male pupils, a silly lad, Freddie Meline, the son of a millionaire manufacturer who has carelessly left his purse and papers also in the discarded garments. Disguised as a youth, Rosette wends her way to the barracks, is recruited, they being especially short at the time, and is informed that the commanding officer is a martinet, especially to the sons of wealthy parents and that his greatest hobby is baths, hot and cold, many of which must be taken daily. This alarms Rosette, who, playing for time, gets up a desperate flirtation with the Lieutenant. Claire, coming in search of Rosette, is likewise immediately impressed and actually has to take the baths, which so alarms the model that she tells the amorous lieutenant that she is the daughter of the millionaire, Meline, but that he was so disappointed at her sex that since birth she has worn the garb of a boy. The lieutenant immediately sends for her father, and in the meantime the real Freddie Meline, who was drafted for service, but owing to loss of money and papers, appears. The action becomes very rapid and the humorous incidents are easy to imagine.

Among the pleasing musical numbers are "Verily, Merily," "Le Couer de Ninon," "Every Hour Brings Its Flower," "Sweetheart," "The Army Corps" and "Ladies Beware."

In Corinne's support are the following: Charles Meyer, F. Cutler, Louise Brunelle, Frank Farrington, Alfred Robe, Bonnie Farley and Kitty Baldwin.

Tommy—"Pop, what is horse sense?" Tommy's Pop—"Horse sense, my son, is a quality possessed by a man who doesn't bet on them."
